Hello Parents and Guardians,

This month "Leader in Me" focuses on Habit #8: "Find Your Voice and Help Others Find Theirs". Today it's easier to find a way to be heard, we just post it. It's easier to find other people like ourselves, with like experiences and feelings. So why did Stephen Covey devote an entire book to the 8th Habit?

We are switching from an Industrialized Age to an Information Age. The Industrialized Age devalued people, fitting them into compartments and keeping them there in order to harness their effort... the one thing they wanted from them. Creativity was not valued and in some cases discouraged.

Stephen Covey says that with the Information Age we are moving away from individualized to interdependent effort or working together in groups. He states that each one of us is born with a unique set of gifts that we can share with the world.

Students of PBA will be reminded that they each have unique gifts. They will be empowered to share them and discover how their talents can help others in the world. They will be encouraged to inspire others to find and share their own greatness with the world ensuring interdependent, creative effort in the future.

Sincerely,

PBA Lighthouse Team

“Vision is seeing a future state with the mind’s eye. Vision is applied imagination.” – Stephen Covey

Find Your Voice, Rise to Greatness

Steven Covey’s 8th Habit is all about finding your voice and helping others to find theirs. Your voice is the unique talents you have that you share with the world. Your rise to greatness is the path you create for yourself, the inspirational beacon you light, and the assistance you give to others to do the same.

Talents + Vision + Passion/Drive = Greatness

Steven Covey says we are moving out of the industrialized age, a time where individual talents and creativity were sacrificed in order to increase a worker’s productivity in mass. Creativity was not needed from workers in general because individualized tasks could be accomplished by most people. Their individual effort towards the task (the work they could produce) is what was valued.

We are now in the information age. The challenges businesses face today are not due to fast paced technology or worldwide reach, but in harnessing the potential of its workers. Not just everyone can do everything any longer. Businesses need new and groundbreaking ideas. Why is that hard to find?

Some of us (especially those just entering into the workforce) have no problem voicing their opinions and showcasing their talents in many forums. It’s the rest of us, the ones who were put in restricted categories where creativity and voicing opinions were discouraged that need guidance. We want to live a life of contribution and meaning, yet most of us are not thriving in our organizations, and are feeling disempowered. Many of us have not even identified our passion or perhaps have not even explored our talents. We have an extraordinary amount of potential and choice, but we don’t know what to do with it. Stephen Covey addresses this issue by first defining what people need...

The 4 basic needs of people:

1. To Live (body) – pay me fairly – discipline
2. To Love (heart) – treat me kindly – passion
3. To Learn (mind) – use me creatively – vision
4. To Leave a Legacy (spirit) – serving human needs in principled ways – conscience

Stephen Covey feels that “the call of this new era (The Information Age) in human history is for greatness, it’s for fulfillment, passionate execution, and significant contribution”. It is time to transcend the limit of being effective as a unit of productivity (covering the first 2 basic needs) into being great (fulfilling all 4 basic needs), contributing to the world and serving others in a principled manner.

Okay, so how do we get there? How do we find our voice? What do we want to offer the world? It’s as Covey stated, you can’t “go” anywhere unless you follow a path. So how do you create/find your path? That’s where your unique talents and vision (where you see yourself going) come in.

To discover your talents, or voice, think about... What people admire about you, the creative hobbies you enjoy, the things you look forward to doing. If you don’t know, try some things out. Did you enjoy it? Did you feel accomplished? If not, try something else. Keep trying until you find something you enjoy doing that other people appreciate, something that is difficult to do or that they are unwilling to do themselves.

To discover your vision ask yourself... What do you want to do, what do you want to be. If you don’t know, start with your likes and dislike. Most people can identify what they don’t want. So what do you want instead? How do you want to live? It doesn’t matter whether you think it’s possible right now, just make a picture of what you want and how you want things to be.

Okay, so say you’ve figured out your vision, how do you make it a reality? That’s where passion and drive come in. Stephen Covey has 4 Assumptions that can help you with your drive and passion to bring your voice, your unique talents to the world. Keep these assumptions nearby and review them often...

Stephen Covey’s Assumptions to live by:

1. For the body—assume you’ve had a heart attack; now live accordingly
2. For the mind—assume the half-life of your profession is two years; now prepare accordingly
3. For the heart—assume everything you say about another they can overhear; now speak accordingly
4. For the spirit—assume you have a one-on-one visit with your Creator every quarter; now live accordingly

What Covey really wants us to understand about the 8th Habit is that it is you who has the power to control your life and your circumstances, and to also remember that others have this same power over themselves as well. That is the whole idea of finding your voice and inspiring others to find theirs. It is here that you find greatness.

Find Your Voice / Franklin Covey

In a nutshell, The 8th Habit is to find our voice and inspire others to find theirs, with voice referring to an individual’s unique personal significance. How do we find out that thing about ourselves that is unique and is also valuable to others, and also help others to find this out about themselves, too?

In today’s day and age, working together (interdependence) has become more valuable than competing with one another (independence).

Back in the Industrial Age, when work was mostly physical, differences in individual people’s productivity were marginal, as no one man could cut 100x logs more per day than another.

Covey – The 8th Habit

Finding Your Voice

Discovering your voice

We are all born with three gifts:

1. The freedom to chose
2. Natural Laws and Principals
3. Four Intelligences
 - Mental Intelligence
 - Physical Intelligence
 - Emotional Intelligence
 - Spiritual Intelligence

Developing your voice

1. Develop your mental energy into vision
2. Develop physical energy into discipline
3. Develop emotional energy in passion
4. Develop spiritual energy into conscience

Inspiring Others to Find Their Voice through Modeling

- The Voice of Influence – be a trim-tab; the small rudder that turns the big rudder that turns the ship.
- The Voice of Trustworthiness – be trustworthy; have character and competence.
- The Voice and Speed of Trust – build trust!
- SOMETIMES THE VOICES NEED TO BE BLENDED

But now that we live in the Information Age, where knowledge is our main skill, a great programmer can indeed be 1000x more valuable than an average one. In the Information age (the 21st century), people are “finding their voice” and are expressing themselves all over the internet. All of this is being done without traditional “carrot & stick” incentives. So why are they all sharing their blogs and valuable information? Because they are finally being heard! People want their lives to have meaning and they want to know that they are “making a difference”.

“No matter how long we’ve walked life’s pathway to mediocrity, we can always choose to switch paths. Always. It’s never too late. We can find our voice.”
